The Chief Consideration

In investing money the most important point is safety. Fortunes can be made by speculating in wheat, real estate or stocks; and fortunes can be lost in the same way. The wise man looks for something surer, even if it looks smaller. The advantages a savings bank account has over all other investments are its absolute safety and its unceasing steady growth. We give every attention to large and small accounts.

From One Day To The Other

THE HAPPY SOUL.

The wind was east and the chimney smoked.
And the old brown house seemed dreary.
For nobody smiled and nobody joked.
The young folks grumbled, the old folks croaked.
The back door home chimed and wailed.
They opened the door and a girl came in.
Oh she was lovely—very.
Her nose was pug, and her cheeks were thin.
There wasn't a dimple from knee to chin.
But her smile was bright and cheery.
She spoke not a word of the cold or damp.
Nor yet of the gloom about her.
But she mended the fire and lighted the lamp.
And she put on the place a different stamp.
From that it had without her.
They forgot that the house was a dull old place.
And smoky from base to rafters,
And gloom descended from every eave.
As they felt the charm of her mirthful laughter.
And the cheer of her happy laughter.

SOCIAL.

Mrs. Sydney H. Woods and her children left this week for Vancouver to spend the summer.
Mrs. F. H. Smith and family leave for Banff tomorrow. Mrs. Smith will not receive until the first Wednesday in October.
Mrs. Saunders, accompanied by her children and niece, Miss Stevens, of Ottawa, leaves next week for her summer cottage in Banff where they will spend the summer months.
The engagement is announced of Mr. D. Fittinger, of Montreal, general manager of government railways, to Mrs. F. P. Reid, of the same city. Mrs. Reid is a niece of the late Hon. Chas. Fisher, of New Brunswick, and a sister-in-law of Dr. W. E. Parkin, of the Rhodes scholarship commission.
The coming of Mr. Fiske and his group of artists will be the social event marking the pleasantly quiet summer months. Elaborate arrangements have been made to convert the big bank into suitable attire, and as many in the audience will see evening dress the scene will undoubtedly be a pretty one.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mrs. Geo. A. Reid, Fourth street, will receive tomorrow, Friday, and not again until the last Friday of September.

HADLEY-RILEY.

The marriage took place yesterday in the home of the Principal of Alberta College of Mr. Lester Hadley, of White Lake, and Miss Georgina Riley, of Tillamook, British Columbia. The principal, Rev. Dr. Rickell, officiated. The bride was attended by Mrs. Best, while Mr. Middleton acted as groomsmen. After the ceremony the young couple left for their new home at White Lake.

MCCUTCHEON-ROSS.

A pretty home-going took place yesterday at half-past one o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cogswell, Jasper avenue, when Miss Lottie Ross, sister of Mrs. Cogswell, married in marriage to Mr. D. J. McCutcheon, of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. McQueen, of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. McQueen, of the First Presbyterian Church. The bride wore a lovely gown of white tulle and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by Mrs. Young, of Nova Scotia, who was seated in the front row. The groom was Dr. R. H. McCutcheon, of Quill Lake, brother of the groom. Only a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony. After a pleasant wedding luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon left by the afternoon train for a honeymoon trip. The bride wore a handsome travelling gown of navy blue broad silk.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

The Eight-Hour Law May Have Two Sides—As this Report Occurrence Suggests.

President Roosevelt was passing through Pennsylvania lately, and as his train stopped at Canonsville, the president complied with the wishes of the people assembled and addressed them briefly. As the little speech has been translated into the vernacular, let the sentiments be typical of the strong man who is presumably first in the heart of the American nation.
He was talking to railroad men, members of brotherhoods, and of them, but the president, who is always unshaking the home, did not forget that the majority of his hearers were also members of homes. So when he had finished his address upon the duties of good citizenship he addressed the crowd.
"Above all, remember that your first duty in being a good neighbor is to be a good neighbor to those who are nearest to you. Be a good neighbor to your own wife and children. I have mighty little use for the man who is always declaiming in favor of an eight-hour day for himself, who does not think anything at all of having a leisure day for his wife. Give her play all round and remember that the woman needs fair play even more than the man. I believe in an eight-hour day for the man, but I want the man's wife given as good a show as the man."

CALMNESS.

Calmness is great advantage; he that loses it loses his wits.
Another chafe may warm him at his fire.
Mark all his wanderings and enjoy his fire.
—Herbert.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Touring with a caravan is the method of spending a holiday chosen by Lady Arthur Grosvenor, of Grosvenor Old Hall, Chester, and in a country of short distances and wondrously lovely views the plan seems ideal.
Lady Grosvenor's bank travel by caravan without attending the attention of the inquisitive and intrusive, a very pleasant method of seeing the country. Her travelling equipage includes four horses, four dogs and two birds, and it is stated that she dresses in keeping with the role she has adopted. Part of the holiday will probably be spent in the Dartmoor district.
Lady Arthur Grosvenor was one of the first subscribers to the Gray Line society. She is the daughter of Sir Robert Sheffield, and was married in 1863. Her husband is aged 47, and is an uncle of the present Duke of Westminster.

ST. JOHN FOLK ARE CONCERNED

Over Insanity Among Postal Employees—9 Lunatics In 14 Years

St. John, N.B., June 27.—Does a grim and threatening hostess hang like the faded record of lunatics over the employees of the St. John post office?
Some persons who have quietly enquired into the verity of reports largely circulated about the big Prince William street institution aver that it does, while others—of practical opinion, and with no tenderness in the direction of fatalism—laugh at the hoodoo idea and are inclined to believe that the extraordinary facts are merely a wonderful coincidence.
He that as it may, it is nevertheless a fact that since 1868—or in fourteen years—nine employees of the postal department have gone insane. Some of them have died; some of them are in the Provincial Hospital, and some are being cared for at their homes.
There are in all 141 employees of the post office department who make St. John their headquarters. Of this number 30 are railway mail clerks and 20 city letter carriers, thus leaving 45 employees in the office building proper.

It is understood, although not for a certainty, that the cases of insanity have very largely been confined to the employees in the post office building, and it is doubtful if in any city in America, irrespective of size or population, any public institution or private corporation can make a similar showing. Frequent complaints have been made that the sanitation of St. John post office is about as bad as it can be. Sanitary arrangements are very poor, and it is a known fact that the physical health of the men employed there has been affected. Moreover it is notorious that the post office clerks are in all cases very exacting, requiring concentration of mental energy which might easily induce first a brain fog and perhaps later, if the habit is continued, a mental condition irreparably worse.

HELD UP AUTO.

Lutbridge Rancher's Horse Was Frightened—Sentenced to a Month.
Lutbridge, June 27.—A ranchman named Blasco, of Slav nationality, who was here, was sentenced by Inspector Belcher today to a month at the barracks for holding up Mr. Young, sheriff of the district, and Mr. Freeman, in the latter's automobile yesterday at noon on country road. The machine started his horse and Blasco pulled a shotgun as a persuader to the city men to stop. He has done this sort of thing before.

POISON INTENDED FOR HIMSELF

But Leo. King Gave It To Another Man, Who Died In A Few Hours

Rochester, N.Y., June 27.—Peter and David Mond of 3717 Warren street, Philadelphia, en route to Geneva, N.Y., on the Black Diamond express last night, accepted a drink of whiskey from Leo L. King, who boarded the train at Wilkesbarre. The three men finished the bottle, and King produced a second. Peter Mond took the first drink out of it, when King discovered that he had given Mond a bottle containing opium of potassium. Mond immediately collapsed, and when the train reached Geneva was hurried to the hospital, where he died in a few hours. King was arrested at Geneva. At the station he had secured the poison for himself; that he intended to end his life on account of family troubles.

GETTING IN THE GAME.

It was not in any spirit of philanthropy that Mr. Foster brought the Union Trust to the rescue of the distressed Fowler syndicate. Or at least any sentimentality compels him may have entertained for the gentlemen were overwhelmed by the more powerful influence of self-interest.

In the opinion held by the syndicate Mr. Foster and the friends of his financial discipline saw an opportunity of enriching themselves. How far this fact was made to influence the policy of the Union Trust has been explained, and probably it need not be explained. If the benefit of Mr. Foster and his allies was not the purpose in mind, why did the Trust Co. provide the cash to purchase the land for them instead of for itself? The agreed intention of Messrs. Foster, McGillivray & Wilson from the beginning, was to make a profit of 50 cents per acre. If the policy of the Union Trust had been dictated solely and exclusively to enable them to accomplish this purpose, it is not apparent where that policy would have differed in a single detail from the course that was followed.

The option was bought for the Foster-McGillivray syndicate with the funds of the Union Trust, and these gentlemen set to work to make their 50¢ per acre. They obtained control of the charter of an Ontario land syndicate and changed its name to the Great West Land Company. This rejuvenated concern was then endowed with an imaginary or prospective capital of $100,000, equal to the 50¢ per acre the syndicate were to make on the land, and the land was turned over to it. This stock was divided in such manner that Mr. Foster and his allies held $48,250 interest; Messrs. Pope and Fowler came in for $5,000, Mr. Oronchakish for $4,000; the Union Trust Co. were given $25,750 stock as loans for financing the enterprise. Sir John Boyd bought forty shares and paid for them; Mr. Schofield bought 40, paid half their cost, and was forgiven the balance. This $50,000 was all the cash put into the concern for stock. All the remainder of the money expended by the Great West came from the Union Trust Company, yet the Union Trust Company was the only shareholder deprived of the right to share in the profits on the land.

The Great West Land Company was to its intent and purposes the Foster-McGillivray syndicate, its capital represented their expected profits and its business was to divide these profits among the parties concerned. The members of the syndicate were the executive committee of the Great West Land Company. The purpose for which the company was formed was to enable Messrs. Foster-McGillivray and Wilson to make their desired profit on the land.

Under this arrangement what was the situation from the standpoint of the Union Trust, and the Foresters who supplied the money to the Union Trust? It must be remembered that the land had yet to be paid for. The $250,000 due the C. P. R. must be paid by some one; the $150,000 cash due the Pope-Fowler syndicate must be paid by some one. Who was to do it? The Pope-Fowler syndicate assuredly were not the parties. They had shuffled off the property and its liabilities, and were collecting their profits. The Foster syndicate had neither the intention nor the means of doing so. They had not paid for the option out of their own pockets; how then could they pay for the land itself? The newly formed Great West Land Co. had no money with which to purchase the property. Who, then, was expected to supply the money? The Union Trust was the only party in the transaction apparently capable of doing so. It is obvious that from the first the intention was that the Union Trust should extend to the Great West Land Company, the generous treatment it had already accorded to the Foster syndicate, and should continue to provide the funds.

And supposing the Union Trust did vanced the funds, who became responsible for them to the Union Trust? The company could take a mortgage on the property, but is it the custom of financial institutions to provide all the funds for an enterprise without security other than that of the enterprise itself? The company could take stock in the Great West Land Company, but this would be nothing more than securing a part interest in a concern for which they were supplying all the money. In either case the position rendered itself into this: If the venture proved profitable, the Trust Company would receive back their principal with either interest or dividends; if the venture proved unprofitable, the Trust Company would have no claim, but the Great West Land Company, but the Great West Land Company had no assets save its prospective profits; and if the venture were unsuccessful there would be no profits.

This was the way Mr. Foster discharged the trust reposed in him—by perverting the Union Trust from an investment agency of the Forests of money into a money-lending concern supplying the funds for himself and his friends to carry on their speculations. This was the position into which the Union Trust Company was led that Mr. Foster and his associates might make a profit on a land transaction, and it was in this position and for this purpose that the company was made to advance $980,000. How did this position accord with the purpose for which the Foresters had formed the company, and had put their money in its keeping? Was this an example of "foresight" and "care" that the funds should be absolutely secure, and that they would certainly return a satisfactory profit for those whose welfare the Foresters had in mind when they paid in their dues?

SCOOPED BY SCRIPPS.

One surely has to go abroad to learn the news of home. Under the heading: "Vast Region is Flooded," a California exchange produces the following "dispatch" from Edmonton: "By Scripps News. 'Edmonton, Northwest Territory, June 18.—The melting snows in the great region tapped by the Saskatchewan river have swelled the waters to an unprecedented height, and the flood is sweeping down the valley, covering an area of 500 square miles. 'The damage to the lumber camps made up from the winter's cuttings will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Every raft for a distance of 1,000 miles along the North Saskatchewan is in danger, and the vast majority have already been broken up and swept away.

"The flood is increasing and the scattered inhabitants of this vast region are fleeing to the hills."

For enterprise Scripps appears to be a winner. The nature of the "truth" does not contrain the soaring imagery of Scripps nor cramp the conception of a splendid sensation. Meantime, what of the "scattered inhabitants" of this "vast region," who so precipitately took to the highlands to escape report? The bulletin objects to being "scooped" by Scripps.

BIG PAPER MILL COMBINE.

Is Being Organized in Wisconsin.

Mary Mills to Be in It.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 27.—The Evening Wisconsin today says: "If several plans are matured, the manufacture of print and other classes of first-class paper in Wisconsin, embracing some 20 large mills, will shortly form one of the largest owning and operating paper manufacturing syndicates in the country. The plan means a manufacturing and operating company similar to the International Harvester Company, and will not be a 'trust' in the sense of the late General Paper Company, which surrendered its charter because of Federal hostility. A large majority of the paper mills, which formerly were part of the General Paper Company, are said to be interested in the proposed organization."

THOS. LAWSON IS AN OPTIMIST

Returns From Europe Convinced
That Prosperity is Firmly Established

New York, June 27.—Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, who has been touring through Europe, returned to the City last week, brown and cheerful, though he had been in bed a shipboard since Thursday with a cold. He said he saw nothing abroad to here indicating financial trouble. Europeans regard this country as the most prosperous in the world, said he. "They believe Americans have money without stint. On my automobile trip from Nice to Paris I took pains to stop in small towns to study the financial conditions in the country. I also studied them in Paris." He said he would continue to fight the "system."

Mr. Lawson had an audience with the pope, and sat to Antoine Manguin, "the mad painter," for his portrait. Manguin, Mr. Lawson said, had the reputation of being the greatest colorist in the world, and he had a bad of himself made by Bellerose. For three weeks he sat to Manguin. During intervals, the financier said the painter would go to the Louvre. He would creep and yell about the floor, scream and yell and indulge in a variety of capers.

Seen Roosevelt in Race.
Of the next candidate of the Republican party for President, Mr. Roosevelt will be elected, Mr. Lawson said. "Roosevelt will be nominated without doubt, and he will be elected. Fourteen months ago I made a bet of $10,000 with Maurice Undermyer, H. H. Rogers, lawyer, that Mr. Roosevelt would be nominated again. Mr. Undermyer bet that he would not be re-nominated. I don't care how stupid a man Taylor or what Fairbanks is doing, they have not put the nerve to finish the big stick."

It is the big stick that will do the work. The big stick is in the air and it wants somebody to wield it. If the big stick should go overboard, then the system, having again thrusted the people, would say: "What are you going to do about it? If Taylor or Fairbanks or anybody else should get into the White House, the system would command: 'Bring out the tally sheets, see what Roosevelt did to us.' Having seen the tally sheets, the system would multiply its losses by ten and twenty-fold, and get back all its losses multiplied."

Will Have to Accept.
"From the present standpoint Mr. Roosevelt would be a fool to accept the nomination, but he will accept it from a sense of duty, and will be elected. Roosevelt has been advised and he knows that he has now reached the highest point of prestige that he can ever reach. Notwithstanding this, Roosevelt will be nominated and elected."

Europeans seem to think that before a great while time in this country will be brought to an issue, and that it will be a certain that Harman will take his portmanteau and his yellow jacket and give up, and that by that time Roosevelt will have created a fortune or another commission that will rip the system to pieces. The people of Europe have more confidence than Americans that Harman and the corporate interests will surrender.

UNDERTAKER GOT HIS BODY READY

Man Tells How It Feels To Be Measured As A Corpse
For Burial

London, June 27.—The commercial traveler, James Egan, who was laid out in his shroud for the grave at his lodgings in Dore street, Rochdale, and was subsequently found to be only in a trance, relates a marvellous story of his adventure with death.

He is now under the kindly care of a devoted sister, regarding his strength by slow degrees at Black-poll.

Words cannot adequately convey Egan's sensation as he lay in the concrete of the tomb, consciously "dead" so to speak for at least five hours.

Like Eternity.
"It was like an eternity," he says, "an eternity of unspeakable mental agony. I knew that I was alive, and the greater part of the time and made terrible inward struggles to manifest some outward sign of life. May no human being—no the worst enemy I ever had or shall have—pass through such tortures."

When the undertaker came I thought I should have gone mad. How awful it seemed that I should be unable to so much as open my eyes or even wink while I could plainly feel the undertaker measuring me. I hoped for something to happen that might so startle me as to produce a sign of life.

"If the undertaker had not measured me a second time, I suppose I might have given up the ghost. He told me afterwards that he always measured bodies twice—in order to make sure whether they were dead, but only to be correct."

Imagine my despair when I thought the undertaker had done with me, and imagine my joy, coupled with an awful dread, when I felt him lower my head from the pillow and repeat the promise of measuring me. I made desperate efforts to raise myself, and once actually succeeded in making a slight movement over my stomach, but no one observed it. My despair was heart-breaking. After all my ineffectual attempts to show a sign of life, when I received the undertaker's "Resurrection Trumpet Blast."

"I pulled myself together for a final effort, as it seemed to me my last chance. Once more I could distinctly feel that I had moved, and this time the undertaker noticed it. I heard him about: 'He's not dead! He's alive! Bring cold water! Bring brandy! Bring the doctor! Look! Look! Look! He's moving. Look at his eyes! He's twitching!'

"Then the undertaker whisked to those down stairs to come up. That whistle was my resurrection trumpet blast. I fairly woke me up. The undertaker afterwards described how he whisked with his fingers. And in a few minutes I heard my own voice saying, 'I am cold, cold, so cold.' Of course I must have been so cold as death; otherwise they would not have taken me for dead."

At This Time.
Winnipeg, June 27.—The city building total for 1907 has reached the $4,500,000 mark, as compared with $6,000,000 at this date last year. The number of permits issued for this year is 1,201, about 200 less than at this time last year. The decrease in the figures is accounted for by the absence of large permits this year, whereas last year almost every day in the spring season brought in a permit for a building to cost $50,000. The residence growth this year is very nearly as great as it was in 1906, and the population of the city is extending with a steady march at a rate of two inches per day.

BEGIN LIFE IN $5,000,000 PALACE

Brother Of C. M. Schwab And
His Bride Take the Steel
Magna's Mansion

New York, June 27.—A $5,000,000 palace overlooking the Hudson isn't exactly the place Charles Wagner would have picked out for leading the simple life, but it is just such a place—the Riverside drive home of Charles M. Schwab—that servants are making ready for an interesting young couple of newly-weds who crave that sort of existence.

Professor Edward H. Schwab, a brother of the steel magnate, and his eighteen-year-old bride, who was Miss Edith McJannet of Cleveland, are expected at the Schwab residence to pass their honeymoon.

The magnificent French Renaissance palace, with its gardens, its huge wrought iron railings, its locked gates and its watchmen, is as accessible to the outside world as the haunts of royal sweethearts. When the young professor in Notre Dame University was married to Miss McJannet last Tuesday he announced that there was to be no ostentation about the honeymoon. An invitation to travel in Charles M. Schwab's private car was refused and talk of a $2,000,000 wedding gift from the steel magnate was ridiculed.

For the simple life, the young couple will not travel in a private car, because it won't be in keeping with their future life. It will be the simple life, as they will lead, said the young bride.

However, the young professor—he is only 23—and the girl, who first met him while she was studying at Notre Dame, will begin their simple life in one of the most expensive palaces in New York. Behind its formidable Gothic towers and imposing granite walls, the young couple in search of the simple life will find everything that is the opposite of the steel magnate's millions could procure for comfort, convenience and entertainment.

When they take their solitary breakfasts in the $5,000,000 haven of simple life, however, they will gaze upon specially woven tapestries, representing "Diana preparing for the hunt" and the service, all of which is specially designed in keeping with the French period, will give them the quietness of magnificent simplicity. At dinner they will sit in lonely grandeur in the Louis XIV. dining room, with its tapestry of "Abundance" and the four seasons' decorating the wall panels.

Plenty of Solitude.
All the solitude the newly-weds seek on their honeymoon will be theirs, or have been given by Charles M. Schwab, that unusually strict surveillance be kept over the mansion. The place is entirely in their hands, and though its many perfectly fitted rooms they may wander as they desire, the whole house will give them a hint in travel, for the art gallery is filled with treasures and the details of the furnishings represent the artistic perfection of historic periods.

The private rooms of the young professor and his bride on the second floor, are the famous ones decorated with the mural paintings, the "Athena of Cupid." The rooms are in Louis XVI. style and opening from them is the dining room, the library, the little Western, bride probably never dreamed of in her simple life, planning. The central hall, the dressing room is decorated with "The Toilet of Cupid." Each bathroom opens upon an oval bath with domed ceiling and walls of rose marble. On the same floor is a Francis II. sitting room, with elaborately carved wall and wood work and green walls. Here the young couple may take solitary breakfast when they desire to be even more solitary.

Comfort the Main Idea.
Just how the simple life idea will flourish in the minds of these newly-weds when the wonders of the Schwab palace are unfolded to them is conjectural, yet the best feature of the Schwab residence, in the steel magnate's eyes, is the fact that everything has been made subservient to comfort. While art and lavish display may run riot, in no way have they detracted from the idea of "home," so, after all, the young bride and her bride may be quite as much at home as in South Bend.

As a wedding gift, Professor Schwab and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Schwab presented a magnificent set of silver worth many thousands of dollars. Their little white dining room in South Bend will be one of the best fitted in that Middle West town.

While the splendor of the solitary palace may not exactly accord with simple life ideas, the lonely group dear will. While only two blocks from the whirling subway, the Schwab home, like the customs at Alay-Rabau and Alou and Chinon, rears, from which different parts are taken, is so isolated as though a feudal lord's soldiers watched to keep intruders away.

The announcements of the young couple may be varied without their ring out of doors, for if they like swimming, there is the magnificent lakefront; if they like skating, there is the gymnasium. If they like music there is the music-room, and if they like billiards, there is the billiard room. But the best gift the palace offers to them, in the midst of busy New York, is the solitude.

For two months, friends of the simple life, Western professor and his bride say, the couple will live in the Schwab palace. After that they will return to the simple life in South Bend, Ind.
